THE NEWS DURING THE PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN.

We desire to have the News largely circulated during the Presidential campaign. The larger our subscription list the more effectually will we be enabled to work, and to this end we trust our friends and patrons will exert themselves somewhat in adding to our present list. The nation will in November declare for GREENLY and BROWN, and it is essential that North Carolina should place herself squarely on this liberal movement—for such a consummation will we earnestly labor.

In order to place the DAILY and WEEKLY NEWS within the reach of all, we will send them for a period of four months at the following rates:

DAILY NEWS.
One copy.	$ 2 25
Five copies.	10 00

Ten copies.

WEEKLY NEWS.

Five copies.	2 25
Ten copies.	4 50
Fifteen copies.	6 00
Twenty copies.	8 00
One hundred copies.	35 00

We trust our friends in the State will assist us in adding names to our list, as by a little exertion on their part we can be enabled to accomplish much good during the present campaign.

London, Jr., of Chatham county, Greeley and Brown Elector for the Fourth Congressional District, and other speakers will address the people of Nash county at the following times and places: Nashville, September 26, Manning's, Friday, September 27, Ferrell's, Saturday, September 28.

Potters & Co., of 31½ Fayetteville st., just received a set of new ten pins and balls—Lovers of the game will now have an opportunity of enjoying themselves.

Frapps received a new lot of lager beer yesterday, and to prove that he had confidence in its superiority, he was willing to trust a pitcher of it to the severe criticisms of the News editorial staff. It was decidedly good.

An occasional visit on the night police on West Davie street, from Fayetteville to Dawson, would be highly appreciated by the residents of this thoroughfare, who desire at least four hours of peaceful quiet repose.

Two-thirds of the cases that come before the Mayor's court are charged with having been "drunk and disorderly," and yet any night three times the number could be arrested within ten steps of our bed-room, and we live only two and a half squares from Fayetteville street.

The storm in Elizabeth, New Jersey, on Monday, was the most terrific that has visited that city for many years.

IRREVERENCE.

THERE MAY BE SOME DEMOCRATS PRESENT WHO ARE REPENTANT AND I LIKE TO PREACH TO SINNERS. YOU HAVE HEARD OF THE FELLOW WHO SAID, 'I CAME NOT TO CALL THE RIGHTEOUS, BUT SINNERS, TO REPENTANCE.'—Delano, Grant's Secretary of Interior, in his speech at Raleigh.

IN THIS FAITH, AND WITH THE DISTINCT UNDERSTANDING THAT IF ELECTED, I SHALL BE THE PRESIDENT, NOT OF A PARTY, BUT OF THE WHOLE PEOPLE, I ACCEPT YOUR NOMINATION IN THE CONFIDENT TRUST THAT THE MASSES OF OUR COUNTRYMEN, NORTH AND SOUTH, ARE EAGER TO CLASP HANDS ACROSS THE BLOODY CHASM, WHICH HAS TOO LONG DIVIDED THEM, FORGOTTEN THAT THEY HAVE BEEN ENEMIES, IN THE JOYFUL CONSCIOUSNESS THAT THEY ARE, AND MUST HENCEFORWARD REMAIN, BRETHREN.—HORACE GREENEY.

"We want a President without a party; a government without corruption; a Congress without price; and a judiciary without politics."—B. Gratz Brown.

DECLINES STILL.

As our readers were informed in our yesterday's paper, Mr. Charles O'Conor has at last replied to the delegation, sent to New York from Louisville, to endeavor to prevail on him to accept the candidacy of Blanton Duncan's Convention. The dispatch says Mr. O'Conor has written an elaborate letter, declaring he must decline.

We have not seen the letter, but presume we are to be treated with another learned essay upon the nature and purposes of human government.

Mr. O'Conor has shown that he is totally incapable of leading in a political movement, and has also demonstrated the fact that he does not appreciate the true condition of the country, especially of the South. But his letter of declination to the delegation that officially notified him of his nomination, and that added their own earnest personal appeals to the solicitations of the Convention, settles the matter beyond all doubt, and makes the Louisvillians more farcical than ever.

Mr. O'Conor had positively declined to allow the use of his name before the Convention met. He then wrote a letter to the Convention, which was read during its meeting, that he could not be a candidate. After he received the nomination, he telegraphed them, first somewhat indefinitely, but afterwards in the most unmistakable and emphatic manner, that it was impossible for him to accede to their request. But yet they were not satisfied. A committee was appointed to go to New York, upon the adjournment of the Convention, and beg and beseech him to re-consider his purpose and to allow his name to be used.

But Mr. O'Conor persists in his resolution not to be a candidate, and the delegation that waited on him are sent back home, without having accomplished their mission.

What will become of John Quincy Adams? Will he run the race alone? Will he stand before the people as a candidate for Vice-President—with no one to head his ticket?

He promised to be a candidate in case O'Conor was also. He says he would "only serve as Vice President" if O'Conor was the nominee for President. But O'Conor unconditionally declines. How can Adams remain long in the field?

The positive and final declination of O'Conor to the Louisville Committee is the last chapter in the greatest political farce of the age. The whole affair is incomprehensible from the first. It now sinks out of sight—amid the laughter and ridicule of the whole country.

THE ERA NOT SUSTAINED.
The Asheville Pioneer, the Radical organ of the Eighth Congressional District, administers the Carolina Era a gentle but well-merited rebuke for its recent revolutionary article, on the subject of contesting the election of Caldwell.

While we denounce the extraordinary language of the Era, yet as a matter of party policy, we do not object to the suicidal course of that paper on the subject of election frauds.

We believe its violent propositions will injure its own cause and disgust the more moderate of its party friends. The Pioneer says:

"We do not agree with the Era in its proposition to resort to force and the bayonet to sustain Gov. Caldwell in any anticipated contest of his election; and if we concurred with that journal, we would not now use the threats it does. They can avail nothing, unless it may be to damage the Republican cause in the minds of a large and respectable class of white men who are inclined to join it, because they apprehend from the ascendancy of their former political associates a reign of violence and lawlessness in the land."

* * * * *

An appeal to the sober judgment and reason of the people of North Carolina, is all that the Republican party needs to sustain its present attitude in relation to a contest of the Governor's election. Until all peaceful, lawfully ordained means are exhausted, let us not think of anything else. Instruct the public mind—wait, and when the time comes, act like men.

The Era, in reply to the above, makes a puerile and indefensible argument by saying that "if Judge Merrimon decides to contest the election, the declaration of such intention will insure the support of the Democratic members. And their minds will be made up before the investigation begins," &c. The Era then adds:

"Thus far we have advised peaceable measures; but, if the State government is to be wrested from Gov. Caldwell because of an adverse decision of a partisan Legislature, in that event, we advise the Governor to maintain possession of the government by peaceable means if possible—at the point of the bayonet if necessary. If a majority of two thousand can be nullified by the Legislature, any majority may be whenever unscrupulous leaders demand and inaugurate a contest."

No reasonable man, no matter to what party he may belong, can object to the proposition to look into the question of election frauds, where frauds have been charged.

If the Legislature shall act upon unsatisfactory evidence—if it shall be guilty of unfairness or wrong in making the investigation—if it shall decide contrary to law when the contest is being tried, then it will be time enough for the Era to make its complaints and to utter its threats.

In the mean time peaceful, law-abiding men of every party should unite in condemning its dangerous and revolutionary teachings, which, if carried into practical execution, would produce the most pernicious results.

We are not surprised, then, that the Pioneer should refuse to follow the central organ of the Radical party in its wild and reckless course. We do not remember that we have seen any approval by the other Radical papers of the State of the Era's proposition of resistance. If they are discreet, they would unite with the Pioneer in condemning the resort to force and violence.

GREELEY'S VISIT TO NORTH CAROLINA.

Horace Greeley has promised to be present at the Charlotte Fair. He does not come on a political mission, and has declined to make an address.

Our people are anxious to see Mr. Greeley, and he will meet with a cordial reception at their hands.

He will probably attend the Fair of the Roanoke and Tar River Agricultural Society, to be held at Weldon. Of this, however, we have no positive information.

The Kinston Gazette, referring to an article in the Era, criticizing Mr. Greeley's purpose in visiting North Carolina during the Presidential campaign, makes the following good point:

"THE DIFFERENCE. The Raleigh Era is terribly horrified at the idea that Hon. HORACE GREENEY is to be at the fair of the Carolinas at Charlotte, because people will look at him; but when Henry Wilson came down here to play fine-dog to Grant it was all right and proper. He, the candidate for Vice President can make lying speeches all over the country, and Grant can travel all over the States and receive ovations and presents, (including bull pupps, C. O. D. $4.50 Express freight), and it is all grand, glorious and triumphant with that paper.

Consistency is a jewel, and one of such rare proportions that seemingly it will never fall into the hands of radical papers in North Carolina."

SUMNER NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR.

The recent nomination of Charles Sumner as the Democratic and Liberal candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, shows the tremendous revolution in popular sentiment now going on at the North.

Two months ago, it was not even known on which side of the Presidential struggle Mr. Sumner would take his position.

A life long opponent of the Democrats, he is now their candidate for Governor.

Mr. Sumner is bitterly opposed to Grant and his corrupt Administration, and like Horace Greeley, he advocates the restoration of concord and reconciliation between the North and South.

A MISAPPREHENSION.

Some of our Liberal Republican friends seem to think that the Central Committee at Raleigh appoint the whole Electoral Ticket. This is a mistake. The Central Committee appoints the Electors for the State at Large. This has been done—and one Democratic-Conservative, Hon. T. J. Jarvis, and one Liberal Republican, E. W. Pou, Esq., have been appointed by this Committee.

This is all they have to do. The Electors for the Congressional Districts were appointed by the nominating Congressional District Committee, heretofore made by the State Convention at Greensboro. It would be usurpation of authority for the Central Committee to appoint such Electors, except in case of the absolute refusal of the Congressional District Committees to act in the premises.

GE. McCLELLAN IN THE FIELD.

Gen. George B. McClellan, has been appointed one of the Electors for the State at large of New Jersey, on the Greeley and Brown ticket. Gen. McClellan at one time commanded the Army of the Potomac during the war, and was the Democratic candidate against President Lincoln in 1862.

Gen. Kilpatrick, of New Jersey, a Liberal Republican is taking an active part in the canvass against Grant, and is doing good service.

New Jersey will give a large majority for Greeley.

A SOUTHERN POETIC GEM.

On Thursday, we gave our readers a poem on Gen. Robert E. Lee, from the pen of J. Augustine Signago, of Grenada, Mississippi. To day we present them another from the same author, commemorating a sad incident of the battle of Missionary Ridge.

We regard this production as being of a very high order of merit, and worthy to rank among the best efforts of American poets. It is a poetic gem of the first water, and we feel sure the readers of the News will thank us for reproducing it in our columns:

ON THE HEIGHTS OF MISSION RIDGE.

When the foes in conflict heated,
Battled over road and bridge,
While blood suddenly ran,
From the wounds of many a brave.

For the men of the Mission Ridge—
There, amid the vines and wildwood,
Two opposing colonels fell,
Who had schoolmates been in childhood,
And had loved each other well.

There, amid the roar and rattle,
Fought Havoc's fiery breath,
With the world to win in battle,
In the agonies of death.

But they saw each other recline
On the earth, and dying men,
At the old time, for a dying,—
As they clasped each other's hand.

Then that night the moon came creeping,
With its gold streams, over the slain,
She beheld two soldiers sleeping,
Free from every earthly pain.

Closely beside the mangled warrior,
Where he lay to ensure the band,

Had died, it seems, together,
As they clasped each other's hand.

At that time the moon came creeping,
With its gold streams, over the slain,
She beheld two soldiers sleeping,
Free from every earthly pain.

Closely beside the mangled warrior,
Where he lay to ensure the band,

Had died, it seems, together,
As they clasped each other's hand.

Every Wednesday night there is a full dress ball by a mutual understanding of the pit-a-paters, shufflers, and "gystlers." But there is hardly any perceptible difference between Wednesday night "hops" than any other of the six dancing nights in the week in the matter or manner of dress as observed by the "hoppists." With several a full dress ball may mean full dressed up to the door, and get into bed by twelve o'clock, the "watching hour of night," and then perchance to sleep of dream, or have a white sulphur nightmare until seven or eight o'clock in the morning. This is the way the beau and belle spend their time at the Greenbrier White. Can you discover a loophole for "recreation"? This is not the most sensible or discreet people spend precious time here, but in a far more rational way. But, jam satis.

In Wilmington they have "scrub" dances, and the acting Mayor of the city is about to bring his foot into it by scraping them out. The Star says they are an intolerable nuisance and commands the action of the Mayor.

WALTER REEVES, of Orange county was arrested in Hillsborough, on Thursday last and tried before U. S. Commissioner W. P. Strayhorn, for aiding and abetting in the escape from jail of the mail robber John Workman. The evidence being circumstantial and insufficient the defendant was acquitted.

Mr. McDowell, a clerk in the store of Mr. Oats, by the name of Henry Hicks on Saturday night last, Hicks was advancing on Mr. McD., with a drawn knife when seizing a double barrelled shot gun he gave him the benefit of both loads.

The town of Mt. Olive has enjoyed a baby sensation. A "little darling" was left at the door of an elderly married pair, who had never been blessed with a child. The wife at first was indignant, but finding that it was a beautiful girl baby of eighteen months old, and would supply a long needed want in the family, the little stranger was taken in and no questions asked.

From the Wilmington Star we glean the particulars of a terrible tragedy that occurred in Robeson county on Tuesday evening last: It seems that two white men named Gilchrist and McClellan had some misunderstanding at a church a few Sundays ago, during which both parties became very much exasperated, and at the solicitation of mutual friends, however, they agreed to drop the matter for the time being. It seems, though, that each had formed a determination to prepare for a future occasion and on the evening in question they encountered each other at or near the residence of a Mrs. McCormick, not far from Lumberton. It appears from what we can gather that they met on the road, when Gilchrist drew his pistol and fired upon McClellan and then ran off, followed quickly by his antagonist, who in turn drew his pistol and shot down Gilchrist, following up his advantage by deliberately walking up to the fallen man and firing three shots into his head. He (McClellan) then turned off and walked back towards the point where he had dismounted from his mule when he saw Gilchrist approaching, but before reaching the animal he fell dead in the road. Gilchrist lingered until Wednesday morning, when he also died.

The Washington Express is responsible for the following snake story:

Last Saturday Gen. Bryan Grimes told us of a kind of snake and him a few weeks since. We give the facts as near as we can remember them, as received from the General. He says, that some seven or eight weeks ago his yard and house, some seven miles distant from this place, became infested with snakes, and they seemed to be of all the different kinds that live in this region. On one occasion, one of his little children was running a dog across the yard, when the servant discovered something following and striking at the dog, she gave the alarm—assistance came and killed the monster, which proved to be a rattle snake with eleven rattles. On another occasion the General killed one of a different species in his library. And the servants were killing them all the time about the yard of different species and sizes.

Some two or three weeks ago one of the General's children, in crossing the yard, stepped over one. The General killed the snake and had a fire made and burnt it. The same day one of the servants killed and burnt two others in the yard, and since that time they have all disappeared. But what is a little more singular about this is, that before the burning of the first one, every one seen was going towards the house, but the last two that were killed and burned were going from the house.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

Utica, New York, gave a rousing reception lately, to Hon. Francis Kernan on his return home.

SMALL as the Republican minority in Kentucky is, it is getting still smaller by the constant loss of white voters.

The printers of San Francisco have formed a Greeley club. The men or types can tell the type of a good man.

Governor Warmouth spoke at the great ratification meeting in New Orleans on the 5th, pledging himself to support the fusion ticket.

The Democratic State Central Committee of Ohio advertise three hundred meetings within the next thirty days. And these meetings will tell!

A squad of Sheriff Dodd's militia entered Russellville, Ark., and set fire to the office of the Tribune, an anti-Administration paper, a few days ago.

Mr. H. W. Longfellow, the great poet, has been selected as delegate at large to the Liberal State Convention of Massachusetts.

"The sword of Grant has written his name on the heart of the nation." So says a rabid Grant orator. Yes; and the country's heart bleeds from it.

The Pennsylvanians are looking for Carl Shurz on the 21st inst. Hartranft stock is low enough now. There will be nothing left of it in a month.

Democratic and Liberal Republican State conventions meet Tuesday in Massachusetts, Kansas, New Hampshire, Connecticut, New Jersey, and Maryland.

A New York paper takes exception to the San Antonio Herald's "enthusing" over Mr. Greeley's baffling wit and humor. It is lucky that Grant can't be charged with it.

Out of twenty large houses in Broadway, New York, dealing in boats and shoes, the employees of seventeen are to a man, it is said, for Greeley. The soles of these men are in the right place, depend on it.

The attacks made by the New York on Hon. Francis Kernan, on account of his being a Catholic, are doing him more good than harm. It is a piece of the old Know-Nothing root cropping out which has lost its flavor.

Col. T. B. Thorp, the "Bee Hunter," ventilated his views at a Grant meeting the other day in New York. We suggest to the gallant Colonel that the November bees will hive with Greeley.

The lesson of the Maine election says the New York Tribune, reveals a percentage of change which, with proper organization and work, gives Pennsylvania and Indiana, in October to Mr. Greeley.

This does not look like "weakening." In Hüntry, McHenry county, Ill., where only twenty-four Democratic votes were polled on Monday (23rd) of September, 1872, and ends 3rd Wednesday in June, 1873.

SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 14, 1872.

THE DYING WIFE.

BY W. P. CHAMBERS.

I am dying, dearest, dying,
I know it by my feeble breath;
I feel my flesh grow cold and livid;
And I shall die, death,
Thou will miss me, darling, miss me,
When I shall wither from thy side,
For I have loved and leaned upon thee,
Since I was thy happy bride.

Thou will miss me when our baby
Shall come to thee, and when—
Oh how must have her, dearest, love her,
More than we have loved before.
Thou will miss me, sadly miss me,
In days and nights, and long to come,
When sick and weary, distressed, shall meet me—
Thee will need me in thy home.

I'll not chide thee for thy weeping—
I know those are bitter tears,
I know thy heart is wrung with anguish,
And thou bleed for many years,
Yet I'll seek thy graces to some—
And when I have seen thee,
And I would leave sweet grains of comfort,
Mingling with the thought of me.

Know, then, that I've been most happy
In all that makes the happy wife,
And that thy love has been the blessing
Crowning all my joys,
And that I have been far from thee,
My dearest son yonder shore,
And his doth look with smile upon me,
And will bear me safely o'er.

Know, too, that the pang of dying
Is in the breaking of the ties
That bind me to myself and baby—
To thee, my wife, my life,
All is well with me, my husband;
No doubt a fear disturbs my breast;
And there another moment I waken
I with Jesus Christ shall rest.

Thou will then be sad and lonely,
With none to comfort or to cheer;
And then who have to rear an orphan—
O my love, thy path is dear!
Though I'll have the mine forever,
And the world's wealth, and take
And for thine own, bring home another,
Let her all my places take.

I will watch and hover over thee,
I'll love thee all thy future life;
And I will meet thee at the river,
And I'll be thy angel wife!

I am going, dearest, going!

I've loved thee long and wondrous well!

Oh! I clasp me in your arms, and kiss me!

All is dark and cold! Farewell!
